

Proved by sailing experience: WESTERLY 31ft CRAFT

Westerly 31ft craft were introduced in 1971, and 504 had been sold by November 28th 1975. The basic soundness of the design has been well proved. Reviewing Renown, PWB wrote in Yachting World: "This is the third of a line of boats that a friend of mine has owned from the Waterlooville factory, and he considers it the finest of the range".

In Yachting and Boating Weekly, Anthony Gould wrote of his experience of Longbow after 3,000 miles of cruising in her. He had encountered a fierce Mistral off the coast of Menorca. "The hull" he wrote "was not in the least impressed by this show of force!" Summing up, he said "in our experience, Longbow justifies herself in all respects as a fine ocean cruising yacht . . .".

A correspondent whose Longbow has been used for two seasons' instructional sailing at an RYA-approved teaching establishment wrote: "She has proved to be ideal for the purpose . . . She has covered 6,000 miles around the Channel . . . We have sailed from Alderney to Poole Bar in under ten hours and covered the sixty miles from Cherbourg in nine and a half. She has made 35 channel crossings averaging under twelve hours each".

The Westerly range of 31ft craft is shown below. Proved by extensive sailing experience, and refined in certain details in the light of that experience, they offer really good sailing performance, unusual reliability, and a very high standard of interior design and fitting. Write or phone for details of the range, and a test sail, to any of our sales centres.
